David's practice focuses on secured enforcement and other insolvency matters including mortgage enforcement, as well as on construction and other commercial litigation matters.

David acts for credit unions, banks, and other lenders in collecting loans from insolvent or underfunded clients. Suppliers and general contractors call on David to help resolve numerous construction-related problems, while business owners turn to him when facing commercial litigation challenges such as non-payment and breach of contract allegations.

David has represented clients in proceedings in the Ontario Superior Court of Justice and Ontario Court of Appeal.

David has prepared several papers and has been a presenter to both clients and professional associations (including the Ontario Bar Association) on construction lien and insolvency topics.

When he is not serving clients, David is highly active within the community, serving as a Director of Make a Wish Southwestern Ontario and as a member of the Middlesex Law Association, and the Canadian Bar Association.
